Note: This APL is effective on October 15, 2024 and is subject to change based on utility requirements with a new APL effective date. The products listed in this APL supersedes the approved products in the CCU Design Compliance Standards dated November 1, 2011 and all previous APLs. The intent is that this APL will be updated annually.

IMPORTANT NOTICE: By incorporating these items into a design, this does not relieve any liability by the Engineer of Record to ensure the items are appropriate for the project.

Note to Manufacturers: If CCU becomes aware of any changes to your products as they appear on the list, they may be considered for removal from the next updated APL and will require resubmittal to CCU for consideration.

This APL requires all products to be produced and manufactured in the United States of America (USA) and verified through a standard shop drawing submittal review. Any products that do not comply and are requested for project use must be approved through a specific submittal process subject to CCU approval.

Further, brass above ground meter installation service materials not listed such as pipe adapters, nipples, reducers, meter couplings, ball valves, and elbows shall meet lead free certification to NSF 61/ANSI 372 standards. Due to limited availability, brass above ground meter installation service materials shall be temporarily exempted from the Made in USA requirement if they still meet the lead-free certification to NSF 61/ANSI 372 until further notice and shall be annually reviewed to continue the exemption.

All approved products are listed in the most current CCU Approved Products List, which is posted on the County website. Any products not listed on this approved APL will be required to go through the CCU submittal process.
